Potawatomi Museum to Feature New Exhibits in Fall 2011

submitted by Michael Alloway Sr., FCP Cultural Center, Library & Museum Director

The Forest County Potawatomi (FCP) Community's tribal museum will undergo refurbishment of exhibits and artifacts rotation with its main diorama to remain with some minor changes. The main diorama is seen as a focal point of our history and notes some similarities of the historic alliance of the Ojibwa, Ottawa and Potawatomi. Audio will incorporate a welcome in the Potawatomi language from a series of hidden speakers and include natural sounds of the environment.

Triad Creative Group, Brookfield, Wis., will assist the FCP Museum in the reconstruction of gallery spaces, adding more interactive exhibits and a variety of colorful displays. Of the more noted is the Simon Kahquados exhibit which includes his soldier's coat, leggings, garters, moccasins and silver arm bands currently in the collections of the Wisconsin Historical Museum, Madison, Wis. Kahquados, recognized as hereditary chief of the Wisconsin Potawatomi, died at the home of William Tahwa near the Rat River (Soperton, Wis.) in 1930. It is with respect and honor that this be included as part of the permanent display as we observe May 18 each year, not only as his day of birth, but the achievements he made to better our living conditions.

Other upgrades will showcase fully beaded bandolier bags, interactive maps of original homelands and treaties, newer High-Definition (HD) monitors, and video footage of the 2011 Potawatomi Gathering, Music and Dance (pow-wow) and "In the Voices of Our Elders" kiosks.

The museum's inception originated from the ideas of several tribal members who approached tribal leaders in early 1994 to begin documenting and collecting information to be disseminated into a tribal museum and archive. It is through their vision and efforts that the center exists today, providing for the community and membership with informative exhibits, educational workshops, the re-acquaintance of traditional crafts and the continuation of Potawatomi language learning.

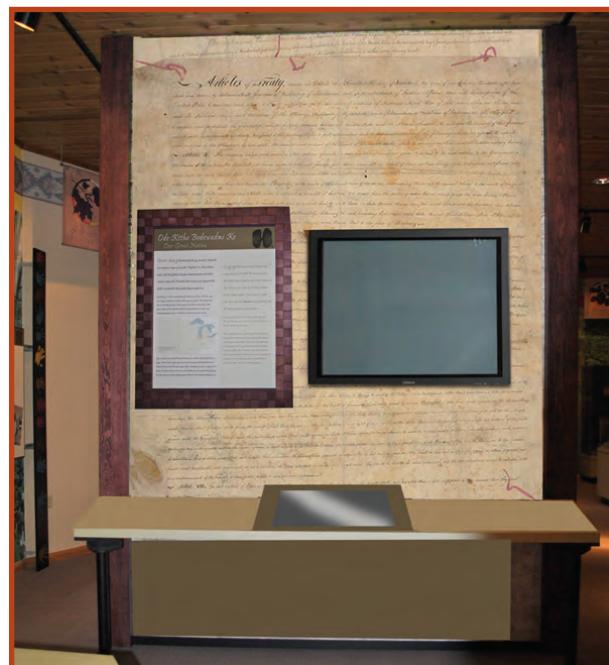

A September re-opening is being planned.

CWD Raffle Winner Named

submitted by Heather Stricker, FCP Wildlife Resources Director

As part of Forest County Potawatomi's (FCP) Wildlife Resources Program, a Chronic Wasting Disease (CWD) monitoring project was initiated in 2010. FCP community hunters were asked to donate samples from harvested deer to be sent in for CWD testing. To show our appreciation, participating hunters were entered into a raffle drawing each time they brought a sample in.

The raffle grand prize included a red deer European mount and red deer venison, donated by the FCP Red Deer Ranch. This year's raffle winner was Benji Jacobson.

Thanks to all who participated. Watch for next year's program and your chance to participate!

Attention Wabeno Elementary Parents!

The Wabeno Elementary School has a policy about teacher requests for the following year. This is part of the student handbook which was sent home in the fall. There is a very important date that is rapidly approaching for parents who are interested in making a request for their son or daughter.

Parent/guardian requests for assignment of students to a specific grade level teacher will be considered. All decisions will be made based on space availability and according to merit and the unique circumstances surrounding each situation. All requests should be made in writing stating the reasons for the request. All requests must be submitted to the building principal by April 15 to be considered. Any request received after this may not receive any consideration. Making a request does not guarantee it will be honored.

Parent/guardian requests for assignment of students to specific teacher will be carefully limited, and a lottery system may be used if more than six requests are made for any grade level teacher. This is to assure an equal opportunity for all students. If you need additional information about the teachers at each grade level or if you have any question about this policy, call Allison Space, elementary principal, at (715) 473-3633.

Knowledge is limited. Imagination encircles the world."

April is Alcohol Awareness Month: The Signs and Symptoms of Alcoholism

submitted by Brian Waugh, FCP Health & Wellness AODA Counselor

Alcoholism is a chronic disease, which may often be fatal. People with this disease cannot control their drinking habits even when it becomes a serious harm for their health, social status and family life. The exact cause of alcoholism is yet unknown. Researchers show that psychological, genetic and social factors influence the development of this disease.

Alcoholism is a type of drug dependence with both physical and psychological indications.

Anyone can be an alcoholic. He/she can be any age, profession, ethnic group or social class.

Alcoholism is associated with denial; the person believes that he/she is in control of the situation. The recognition of the problem is the first step to the treatment; therefore, understanding and accepting the symptoms are crucial. Alcoholism is a serious disease, and it is best cured if treated in its early stages.

Symptoms of alcoholism are:

- Making excuses to drink.
- Lack of control over drinking - an alcoholic may not drink for months or years, but when they do, they have difficulty stopping.

- Excessive alcohol consumption.
- Denial of drinking problems.
- Tolerance to the effects of alcohol (an alcoholic person is able to consume a great amount of alcohol, before showing any signs of drinking).

The younger you are when you start drinking, the greater your chance of becoming addicted to alcohol at some point in your life. More than four in 10 people who begin drinking before age 15 eventually become alcoholics.

Source: NIAAA; Underage Drinking: A Major Public Health Challenge, 2003

• Feeling annoyed when criticized about drinking.

• Keeping and hiding alcohol in unlikely places.

• Drinking first thing in the morning to avoid hangover.

• Showing aggressive behavior while drinking.

• Driving under the influence of alcohol.

- Solitary drinking.
- Unexplained mood swings.
- Missing work.
- Losing interest in social activities.
- May experience paranoia, unnatural fears or contemplate suicide.

• Neglect of physical appearance.

• Impaired memory, forgetting what happened during drinking episodes.

- Depression.
- Difficulty with thinking clearly, confusion.
- Irritability.
- Eating disorders, poor diet and/or sleeping disorders.

• Anxiety.

• Abdominal pain.

• Nausea.

• Vomiting.

• Redness and enlarged capillaries in the face (red eyes, puffy face).

• Weakness and numbness in the arms or legs.

Alcohol also affects other body parts. Liver disease - hepatic cirrhosis - may develop. The damaged liver becomes unable to remove toxins from the blood. Alcohol consumption during pregnancy can result in Fetal Alcohol Syndrome.

Vitamins cannot be absorbed properly. Deficiency of vitamin B12 (thiamine) causes loss of memory and abnormal coordination, which can be fatal if left untreated. Also, due to iron and folic acid deficiency, anemia can occur.

Combining alcohol with anti-depressant and anti-anxiety medications can cause: increased risk of overdose, increased feelings of depression or hopelessness, and suicide in adolescents.

Source: NIAAA; Harmful Interactions: Mixing Alcohol with Medicines, 2007

Large doses of alcohol can raise blood pressure and cause heart problems. Other health problems that may result from alcoholism are cardiovascular damage, pancreatic disease, neurological disorders, clotting disorders, weak immunity to infections, low blood sugar, high blood fat content and sexual dysfunction.

Symptoms may vary from person to person. If a person has these symptoms, a physical examination is necessary. The physical examination includes Chem 20, a toxicology screen and liver function test. Alcoholism may also change the test results of urine, uric acid, osmolality, serum magnesium, ketones, eosinophil count, or ALP (alkaline phosphatase) isoenzyme.

Alcoholism is not a weakness or a sign of poor character. It is a dangerous disease that can be fatal. Alcoholism has a good recovery rate with treatment and the support of loved ones.

Dog Bites

submitted by FCP Health & Wellness Center Community Health Department

The FCP Health & Wellness Center Community Health Department has been involved with several incidents involving dog bites to children. We work with the Forest County Health Department to investigate the incident and make recommendations to the families of the children involved and the dog owner.

What do you need to know if your cat or dog bites someone?

Wisconsin state law (SS 95.21) requires that any dog or cat, which bites a person, be taken to a veterinarian within 24 hours to be examined for rabies, and quarantined for not less than 10 days so it can be observed for signs of rabies.

Requirements of the quarantine include two additional veterinarian examinations. Due to the risk of vaccine failure, animals that are current on rabies immunizations still need to be quarantined and receive veterinarian examinations. If the animal is free of symptoms, it may be quarantined on the premises of the owner. Animals that are not current with rabies immunization must be quarantined at an isolation facility at the owner's expense.

Rabies is a viral disease of the central nervous system. It is usually transmitted through the saliva of an infected animal's bite, and is invariably fatal once symptoms appear. A healthy-appearing dog or cat could be in the infectious phase of the disease without showing any symptoms. In these cases, the animal will develop recognizable signs of rabies in a few days, and usually dies within seven days.

The 10-day quarantine period ensures the dog or cat remains available so it can be observed for signs of rabies. If the animal remains well during the 10 days, it indicates it did not have the rabies virus in its saliva at the time of the bite. Therefore, the bite victim does not have to receive an expensive and unpleasant series of shots to prevent rabies. If the animal is euthanized before the 10-day observation period is complete, the brain can be tested for the rabies virus.

All animal bites (domestic or wild) should be reported to law enforcement or the local health department to ensure the biting animal is observed or tested for rabies. The victim's physician should be notified for evaluation to determine if treatment is necessary regardless of whether or not the animal is available for rabies observation or testing. When an animal bite victim visits the emergency room or doctors office, the medical staff treating the victim are required by law to report the bite to the local law enforcement agency.

The Forest County Health Department and the FCP Community Health Department encourage pet owners to vaccinate their pets to prevent them from getting rabies. Be aware that an owner who fails to comply with quarantine requirements, according to State statutes 95.21(10)(b), may be fined $100 - $1,000 or sentenced to 60 days imprisonment or both.

For more information on rabies and animal bites, contact the FCP Community Health Department at (715) 478-4355 or Forest County Health Department at (715) 478-3371, or visit www.dhs.wisconsin.gov/factsheets/rabies.shtm, or www.cdc.gov/rabies.

Ways to help prevent dog bites:

- Never leave a young child alone with a pet. They often don't know how to be gentle with the pet, which can cause the pet to get irritated and bite.
- Do not try to separate fighting animals. You may get bit in the process.
- Avoid sick animals and/or animals that you don't know whether or not they are vaccinated.
- Leave animals alone while they are eating. Animals are often very protective of their food.
- Keep pets on a leash when in public.
- Select your family pet carefully and be sure to keep your pet's vaccinations (shots) up-to-date.

Staying Active with Arthritis

submitted by FCP Health & Wellness Center

On June 2, 2011, from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m., the FCP Health & Wellness Center, in conjunction with the National Arthritis Foundation, will present its 4th annual Open Public Forum. This year's theme will be 'Staying Active with Arthritis'.

The focus will be on the benefits of physical activity and exercise as a part of your everyday life. Often people think that if there were ever a reason not to be physically active, arthritis pain would seem to be that reason. Research has shown the opposite.

According to the National Arthritis Foundation, properly designed activities may not only decrease your arthritis pain, but may also increase your flexibility and overall fitness. Some of the benefits of regular activity and exercise include:

- Decreased pain
- Increased muscle strength and endurance
- Improved balance
- Increased bone strength/quality
- Reduced risk of falls

Our experienced physical therapy

staff will provide some helpful tips on how to start getting physically active by doing the things you enjoy such as walking, fishing, gardening, golfing and cooking.

For those who can't manage outdoor activities, there will be information on other low impact exercise such as aquatics.

Our pharmacist will discuss medication options and our registered dietitian will discuss eating the right foods to stay healthy and active.

This year, there will be a special presentation by Kathy Ziembo, APNP, clinical nurse specialist from the Aspirus Endocrinology Clinic. The format will be full of discussion, personal accounts, and information to help manage and stay active while living with arthritis.

There will be handouts, door prizes and snacks throughout the presentations.

Presentations will be held in the lower conference room of the FCP Health & Wellness Center.

Admission is free, but please call (715) 478-4344 to reserve a spot as seating will be limited.

Technology and Reality in Sexual Assault: Two-Part Training

submitted by Forest County Potawatomi Domestic Violence Shelter

On April 7, 2011, the public is invited to attend a free, two-part training titled, "Technology and Reality in Sexual Assault". The training will be held at the Forest County Potawatomi (FCP) Executive Building auditorium located at 5416 Everybody's Rd., in Crandon, Wis.

This event is brought to you by the FCP Domestic Violence Shelter and Tri-County Council On Domestic Violence & Sexual Assault (TCC).

The morning session from 9 a.m. to noon, "Safety & Strategic Technology", will be presented by Stephen Montagna, Wisconsin Coalition Against Sexual Assault (WCASA) violence prevention communications coordinator.

Technology helps victims and their children successfully flee violent batterers, stalkers and rapists. But what millions don't realize are the dangerous and potentially lethal sides of various technologies in the hands of abusers and perpetrators. "Safe & Strategic Technology Training" addresses how technology impacts the safety, privacy and accessibility rights of victims by:

- Educating victims, their advocates and the general public on ways to use technology strategically to help find safety and escape domestic violence, dating violence, sexual violence, stalking and abuse.

- Training law enforcement, social services, coordinated community response teams and others on how to hold perpetrators accountable for misusing technology to impersonate, harass, stalk, surveil and threaten.

- Advocating for strong local, state, national and international policies and practices that ensure the safety, privacy and civil rights of all victims and survivors. (Visit <http://nnedv.org/projects/safetynet.html>)

Montagna is an actor/director, multi-media consultant, and anti-violence activist. Montagna had an essay published in Just Sex: Students Rewrite the Rules on Sex, Violence, Activism, and Equality. He has been involved with Men Stopping Rape, Inc., and has presented at workshops, including UW-Madison, Edgewood College, and countless others. For seven years, Montagna worked as the media specialist at the UW-Center for Women's Health Research, one of 20 National Centers of Excellence in women's health funded by the U.S. Dept. of Health and Human Services Office on Women's Health.

From noon to 1 p.m. a light lunch will be provided.

The afternoon session, titled "Sexual Assault 101", will be from 1 to 3 p.m. Topics covered will be:

- What is considered sexual assault
- Victim dynamics
- Native American communities
- Child sexual assault
- Intimate partner violence
- The bystander theory
- Stalking and strangulation
- Who are the perpetrators?
- Law and law enforcement
- Who can you call?

Presenters will be Lynn Johnson, MSW, FCP Domestic Violence Shelter sexual assault coordinator, and MarySue Engebretson, TCC advocate.

Johnson has a master's degree in social work from UW-Oshkosh. She has worked as an advocate and therapist serving sexual assault victims for the last five years. She is currently working with the FCP Domestic Violence Shelter as the sexual assault coordinator serving all of Forest County.

Engebretson has been with TCC for six years. She has received her certificates in Basic and Advanced Advocacy from the Wisconsin Coalition Against Domestic Violence as well as certificates from Wisconsin Coalition Against Sexual Assault in Sexual Assault Advocacy and Expert Witness Training.

As the Forest County Outreach Coordinator for TCC, Engebretson has worked extensively with the City of Crandon Police Department, Forest County Sheriff's Department, Forest County District Attorney's Office, Forest County Department of Social Services, the Forest County Judge's Office, and both the Potawatomi and Sokaogon communities to establish working relationships that connect victims and survivors of abuse and assault with the agencies that can best assist them.

Registration is not required. For further information, please contact Johnson at (715) 478-4991 or Lynn.Johnson@fcpotawatomi-nsn.gov.

NOTICES

CULTURE

Neshnabemwen - The Potawatomi language has endured through the passage of time. At one time, it is said that we all spoke the same language. Later on, we started speaking different languages and forming tribes based on who was able to understand each other.

The Bodewadmi, Ojibwe and Odawa were all one tribe and spoke the same language. As the differences in the language grew, they each formed a separate entity. However, they maintained a close bond and formed the "Council of the Three Fires" to deal with any issues that might affect them. The Three Fires signified the alliance between the three, while their individual fires proclaimed their own identity.

Beginning learners on Monday evenings: 5 - 7 p.m. - FCP Cultural Center, Library and Museum: (715) 478-7478.

Tree Tapping Time

Students Learn a Tradition

by Michelle Spaude

Day One - Tree tapping

As the Forest County Potawatomi (FCP) Gte Ga Nēs preschool children were told to get their coats, boots, hats and mittens on, Ms. Katie (Collins) instructed, "You're not going to be playing outside; you're going to be watching Brian..." It didn't take long for the children to line up by the door, waiting to escape the classroom setting and get some fresh air on March 16 - a bright, warm, sunny day!

The first maple trees were tapped with the Gte Ga Nēs students, one classroom at a time. Brian Franz and Brooks Boyd, Forest County Potawatomi Language & Culture apprentices, gathered the students and teachers around a maple tree and explained the process.

"I want everyone to listen," stated Franz. "This tree is a living thing...we always put down our tobacco (sema) to make an offering to them." Franz explained to the preschoolers how the sema is asking for permission to drill a hole into the tree to use the sap. This is the Indian way. He compared it to other events, such as hunting, fishing, gardening and ricing – always put your tobacco down first to make an offering, before taking from Mother Earth.

As Boyd drilled a hole into the tree, Franz would ask the children how to say different words in Potawatomi, like "hammer", "tree", "fire", "bucket" and "sap". Once the hole was drilled, Franz explained why the hole needed to be cleaned out and a spout inserted. On this day, the sap dripped out of the spout as soon as it was hammered into it. A bucket was quickly hung on the spout. Each of the youth couldn't wait to see it drip into the bucket. "I can't see," and "I wanna see," were comments heard from the group. "Let the ladies come to the front to see," Franz politely said to the young boys.

After everyone had a chance to view the sap dripping into the bucket, Boyd put a lid on the top. He secured it with a large rubber band so nothing would get into the sap. "Do not open this by yourself," Franz cautioned the children. "Wait for the teachers to help you," he encouraged. Franz explained how important it was not to spill any sap on the ground and not to waste what the tree was going to give.

As the little ones headed back into their classrooms, Franz and Boyd appeared fulfilled – a daily Potawatomi language lesson taught to the children and a tradition passed on; the children seemed to soak it all in like a sponge! Both looked forward to the next day doing the same thing, except this time it would be with high school students.

Day 2 – Tree tapping

On March 17, it was hands-on learning for the high school students. While the preschool children were able to watch and observe the tradition of tapping a tree, the high school students had to do it themselves.

The students watch as Brooks Boyd drills a hole in the tree to start the process of collecting sap.

The six youth that experienced this tradition were from the Potawatomi Language Class that is offered as a credit to Wabeno High School students. They were Alan Wescott, 11th grade; Tammy Mann, 10th grade; Gloriann Waube, 10th grade; Ian Waubanascum, 11th grade, Mike Armstrong, 9th grade; and Carl Gerdeen, 10th grade.

Upon arriving at the sugar camp, the students listened as FCP Language & Culture Director Bill Daniels Jr. said a prayer by the fire in Potawatomi. He then explained the prayer to them.

The students walked back to the sugar camp, which is farther back into the woods from previous years. "This is a major upgrade from what we had last year," Boyd smiled. As Boyd and Franz explained the shelter conditions in recent years – tarps falling down, wind issues, heat loss, smoke in the eyes – the excitement showed through them as they stood in the much bigger, steel-made structure this year.

Franz pointed to the new exhaust fan that was installed, which will help get rid of the steam. He also pointed to the new, longer boiling pan. "This will increase the efficiency of the boiling time and decrease wood consumption," he said.

After the process was explained of how to make syrup, the students had to now go tap the trees to get the main (only) ingredient – sap!

Everyone got a chance, more than once – drilling, hammering in the spout and putting on the five-gallon bucket with a lid and rubber band. "It's not how hard you push, let the drill do the work," Franz suggested to Waube as she started her hole in the tree. After drilling, it's important to keep the hole cleaned out so it doesn't plug up the spout. "Blow it out," he said. "Pick a dead stick up to help clean the hole out," he added.

Other tree tapping tips Franz gave the students were to drill at an angle so the sap can flow out and never to drill to the heart of the tree. He also advised not to tap trees less than 14 inches in diameter.

Potawatomi words and phrases were used throughout the time in the woods. Franz questioned in Potawatomi, and the students answered in Potawatomi!

The sap was not dripping as much as the day before. The nighttime freeze and morning sun were absent on this day.

Will it be a good maple syrup season? Only time will tell. Last year, the first trees tapped by the FCP Language & Culture program occurred on March 8. So far, according to Franz, "It's been a really good thaw." The slow meltdown helps the ground to thaw which, in turn, helps the sap to run.

If you are looking to taste this year's maple syrup, then come to the annual FCP community pancake breakfast. Watch for future notices – day and time are yet to be determined.
